

CHSTM Seminar Programme February-May 2010

9 February

David Arnold, History, University of Warwick

Everyday Technology and Everyday Health in India, 1890-1960

16 February

Sabine Clarke, Welcome Unit for the History of Medicine, University of Oxford

Reconsidering the Meaning of the Term 'Fundamental Research' in Britain, c.1915 to 1950

23 February

Bruno Strasser, History, Yale University

The Experimentalist's Museum: Collections of Living Organisms and the Rise of Genetics

2 March

Nick Hopwood, HPS, University of Cambridge

Pictures of Evolution and Charges of Fraud

9 March

Alison Kraft, History, University of Nottingham

From Radiobiological Research Tool to Cancer Therapy: Bone Marrow Transplantation c.1951-c.1961

16 March

Peter Wade, María Fernanda Olarte Sierra, Vivette García Deister, and Michael Kent, Social Anthropology, University of Manchester

Race, Genomics and Mestizaje (Mixture) in Latin America: A Comparative Approach. A Proposal for Research

23 March

Geoff Bunn, Psychology, Manchester Metropolitan University

Love Detectors and Kiss-o-meters: The Role of the Erotic in the History of Deception Testing

27 April

Paulo Drinot, History, University of Manchester

The Venerealization of Peru, c.1900-1950

11 May

Mario Biagioli, History of Science, Harvard University

(title tba)

18 May (Time and venue to be announced)

Thomas Laqueur, History, University of California Berkeley

The Work of the Dead

25 May

Mark Jenner, History, University of York

Tasting the Pulse? The Sensory World of a Seventeenth-Century Physician