

- 8 February Catherine Jackson (STS, UCL)
Chemistry as the Defining Science: discipline and training in nineteenth-century chemical laboratories
- 15 February Tom Lean and Paul Merchant (British Library)
"You don't want to be talking to the likes of me": An Oral History of British Science
- 22 February Christine MacLeod (History, Bristol)
Distinguished Designs: the reconstruction of 'intellectual property' in aeronautical engineering, 1919-1924
- 8 March Xavier Roque (HPS, University of Cambridge)
Reactionary modernism: psychics, culture and politics in Franco's Spain
- 15 March James Mansell (Culture, Film and Media, University of Nottingham)
Noise and nerves in early 20th century Britain
- 22 March Cherry Lewis (Earth Science, University of Bristol)
James Parkinson (1755-1824): interactions between medicine and geology
- 29 March Jerry Kutcher (SUNY, Binghamton)
Cancer Therapy with Fast Neutrons: Anatomy of a Failure
- 3 May Jeremy Green (History of Science, Harvard University)
The same but not the same: Generic pharmaceuticals and the marketing of equivalence, 1962—1982
- 10 May Sonu Shamdasani (Wellcome Centre, UCL)
TBA
- 31 May Brandy L. Schillace (English, Wioana State University)
The Father of British Midwifery and the Mother of Inventions; or, the Curious Disappearance of the Mechanical Mother